

"Much of my published research concerns how to bridge divisions through relationships, rather than through force of evidence. American Exchange Project is exactly the kind of program our country needs to move past the current partisanship that stops us from solving urgent problems - such as those I identified in The Anxious Generation. I enthusiastically endorse American Exchange Project's efforts to expand connections between students across states."

– Jonathan Haidt, Author, The Anxious Generation & Professor, NYU-Stern