To the honorable Members of the House Finance Committee:

My name is Kelli Roberts. I have been a commercial farmer at Roots Farm in Tiverton RI for over 16 years, and I am also president of the board of the Northeast Organic Farming Association of RI (NOFA RI). I am writing in support of H7242, which would allow small and urban farms to receive the same tax exemptions that large farms receive in our state. I speak from experience that small farms can grow a lot of food on a small acreage, as we ourselves grow 25 tons of vegetables on just 1.5 acres on our farm. Small farms play a big role, especially in our small state.

Rhode Island has some of the most expensive land prices in the country and therefore, many of our most productive and thriving farms are under five acres. I believe that a farm's tax status should not be based on land size. Given the land prices in this state, there will only be more small and urban farms in the future

This bill is important to me because it will directly impact the financial wellbeing of many farms in Rhode Island.

In food and farming,

Sincerely,

Kelli G. Roberts
