

To whom it may concern, I have been a part time instructor at URI for over 30 years. Course load fluctuates from semester to semester for adjuncts which causes a degree of economic uncertainty. We must be committed to our URI schedule and all that entails which effects our ability to plan for the work we must do outside of URI to make a living. Now more than ever, with the cuts to the ACA and constantly rising cost of living, access to affordable healthcare through the University would help to improve the security and wellbeing of the part time faculty who teach so much of the curriculum at URI. I strongly support the PTFU in the proposal of Bill # H7158.
