To whom it may concern:

I am a PA in dermatology practicing x 25 years. I have worked with Mary Gervasini for almost 15 years. I know first hand that she has provided exceptional esthetician services for literally thousands of patients over the years. She is highly sought after for her meticulous attention to detail, her personal level of care and compassion, and her commitment to excellence. She advises people on what is the best path for their particular skincare needs, whether that is with her services or not.

In society today health, wellness, and aesthetics are all tied and a priority like never before. Citizens deserve access to the best care. Taking away this access will be a detriment to the Citizens or Rhode Island and it is IMO simply a money grab by greedy MDs. Collaborative Care is here, now. It's just the way it is now. A very few MDs are not capable of spending the extra time and care that is needed and that aestheticians like Mary provide.

Very truly yours,
