Dear Rhode Island House Judiciary,

My name is Connor Grehan and I am a concerned resident of Providence. I am very much in favor of expanding access to virtual court hearings for Rhode Island community members. The option of attending court remotely is valuable for so many reasons--health issues, difficulty with travel, and of course, avoiding ICE terror. People know by now that ICE will wait for them at courthouses, and that is naturally going to lead to community members who choose not to attend important hearings. Beyond that, as representatives of the Rhode Island populace, you all have the responsibility of listening to the voices of our community and taking action accordingly. You all know that ICE practically has unchecked power, and the federal government has made very clear it will do nothing to change that. Rhode Island belongs to Rhode Islanders, not ICE, and everyone who lives here should be able to take part in court proceedings without fear of kidnapping.
