Hello,

Why would you automatically not consider a nuclear power plant? It's the most cost effective form of energy available. Yes, of course they need to be properly run and maintained. But if you want to get away from fossil fuels to protect the environment then please at least consider nuclear energy.

Wind projects kills birds; solar projects requires a lot of land. And both cost more to extract/manufacture than they will ever produce. But yet you don't even want to consider nuclear.

Makes me think - is your goal to intentionally keep our energy prices high? I'd like to think that you have our six, but sometimes I just don't know.
