

Testimony in OPPOSITION to H-2022, Repealing the Corporate Minimum Tax Senate Finance Committee

May 28, 2026

Alan Krinsky, Director of Research and Fiscal Policy

The Economic Progress Institute opposes S-2022 which would repeal Rhode Island’s corporate minimum tax.

Repealing the corporate minimum tax would cost the state over $35 million in revenue each year, a major revenue loss at this time.

Although it may be the case that $400 per year could benefit the smallest Rhode Island micro business owners, repealing the corporate minimum would affect a much larger group. To start, in Tax Year 2024, 77.8% of corporate filers paid only the minimum, and the rate is 87.6% so far for Tax Year 2025. As Division of Taxation testimony provided to the May 2026 Revenue Estimating Conference shows, most Rhode Island businesses pay only the minimum:¹

For such corporations, $400 each year hardly seems a burden that will make any major difference in operations. While $400 may relieve some stress at the margins, such a tax cut on any one individual business will not result, for example, in hiring even a single new employee. For these reasons, we urge you not to advance this proposal to the full Senate.
